The x-axis represents the size of the input N. The y-axis represents the number of seconds each algorithm takes to run on input of size N.